Agilix River Water Treatment

100% All Organic River Water Treatment

Today, numerous water areas around the world are faced with the serious problem of worsening water quality. Originally, mother nature has the power of self-purification, which helps to clean up and clear these water areas. Based on this power of nature, Agilix International customizes bio solutions to treat river water in the most natural, organic way with no chemicals involved and at zero pollutant discharge.

At Agilix International, we provide an innovative and effective water treatment solution which uses organic bio-organisms to treat water conditions beyond conventional methods. These bio-organisms are natural, and not genetically engineered, and there is no need for chemicals or big equipments to do the treatment.

With the biotechnology and expertise in Agilix International, different types of bio-organisms are formulated into a "secret recipe" promoting the growth of desirable bacteria which can help to break down unwanted waste, remove odours, inhibit growth of harmful germs, purify water, and improve the water environment etc, depending on the situation and condition of the river water.
